INDEPENDENT POLICE MONITOR

PRESS RELEASE

New Orleans Independent Police Monitor at City Council's Criminal Justice Committee

We all want to feel safe in our homes and on our streets. The citizens of New Orleans chose to have an Independent Police Monitor because they know that there can be no confidence in public safety without an accountable police force. For the first time in our history, we have the tools to make our police department the best it can be.

Come to the City Council and hear about the work the Police Monitor is doing. Learn about the Public Integrity Bureau, complaint investigations, our systems of review, policy recommendations, agreements with NOPD and new programs. Tell the City Council how you want to use your Police Monitor, share what you want to see from your Police Monitor, and support changes for a better police force.

We will be joined by Superintendent Ronal Serpas and Deputy Superintendent Arlinda Westbrook.

When: Wednesday, November 10th at 8:30 am
Where: City Council Chambers
What: The New Orleans IPM's presentation to the City Council's Criminal Justice Committee
Why: Safety for all people in New Orleans

Together we can be one New Orleans:

Accountable to each other • Dedicated to the highest standards • Committed to safety for all
