PRESS RELEASE

April 20, 2010

POLICE MONITOR SELECTION

The newly selected New Orleans Independent Police Monitor will be introduced to the public during a press conference on Friday, April 23 at 11:30 a.m. at Loyola University New Orleans in the Danna Student Center's Audubon Room.

The IPM Search Committee will meet earlier that day at the university to present three finalists to New Orleans Inspector General Ed Quatrevaux, who will make a final decision and introduce the selected candidate to the public immediately following that meeting.

The selection on Friday follows a nationwide search that produced 111 applicants, five hours of meetings with the public, five hours of interviews and several meetings of the Search Committee.

The press conference is open to the public. Free parking will be available on campus. The Audubon Room is located on the second floor of the Danna Student Center. Visit <http://apply.loyno.edu/maps-directions> for directions.
